To Light or Not to Light Is Still the Question

by Betsy Likowski

Lights or no lights on the ball fields was again the controversy at the latest meeting on the Schrom Hills Park on Monday, March 13. But by the end of the night, a possibility of compromise could be seen as people on both sides of the issue talked of trying to work out of the impasse.

The meeting was held by Greenbelt's city council to accept testimony on the draft master plan for the park. The city's newest park is located east and north of Hanover Parkway, south of Greenbrook Village. It is 43 acres in size, but the city is seeking to acquire several more acres.

A master plan of the park was developed from three planning sessions last year. City consultant Grace Fielder of Greenman & Pedersen drew up the master plan shown at the meeting.

Recreation facilities featured in the plan include a soccer/football field, a baseball field, and a basketball court in the southern end of the park; a sledding hill on the east side of the park; and several playground and picnic areas scattered throughout the park. The central section will remain wooded with trails running through it. A trail will also encircle the wetland area in the northern part of the park.

The entrance to the park will be from Hanover Parkway opposite Space Court on the south side of the park. Ninety parking places are planned. A formal planting of trees—an allé—will lead north into the park. On either side will be the ball fields, with a concession building and restrooms nearby.

Lights at Issue

Most of the evening was spent discussing whether to light the ball fields, costs, and timetable for building parks.

James Foy, president of Hunting Ridge Condominium Association, stated that they are "opposed to any lights in Schrom Hills Park." He explained how he had talked to several hundred people about this issue and only two favored lights. Hunting Ridge is across Hanover Parkway from the park. Foy said that shutting the lights off with a timer would not solve the problem because there could be pressure to set the timer to a later time.

Ron Brooks of Hunting Ridge said that he does not want lights on the ball fields even though he has had children on sports teams. He said he was "relieved to learn tonight I won't have lights in my bedroom window this spring." Lights will have a big impact on the neighborhood, he said.

Foy explained that Hunting Ridge residents already are bothered by the lights at the Lanham Boys & Girls Club fields. He said they are on until midnight 365 days a year.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld suggested writing a letter to city council in complaint and then council would see what could be done about it.

A number of people, including those from the Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club were present to advocate lights on the ball fields.

Julie Greer presented council with a petition signed by about 100 parents urging that the fields be lighted. She said that there is a real need for soccer/football fields but that without practice lighting the teams cannot practice on Fall evenings.

"We're just asking for some access to lighting," explained Clete Mehringer. To ask parents to get children to practice before 5:30 p.m. is an almost impossible feat, he continued, and it is "unfair to parents and coaches to try to get out of work early to have an active sports program."

Jeff Keir, vice president of the Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club, said in written testimony that their position is that there is a critical need in the city for a quality lighted soccer/football field, and that the club supports an enforced turn-off time of 8:30 p.m. At the meeting he said three football and five soccer teams are vying for time at one field at Braden field. He said that it is important that children have the practice time so they can learn safe and proper ways to play.

Timetable

City Manager James K. Giese stated that the park would be usable for ball playing within two years and there would also be gravel parking lots. The whole park would not be completed for years, he said.

Part of the reason for this is financial, for Giese said the city does not have the $1,151,124 the park development is estimated to cost. He said that he would present a plan to council to pay for site preparation and ball field and parking lot construction. This work is estimated to cost a half-million dollars. The preparation of the site has to be done first and all at once, he maintained. He said the rest of the project could be done in small pieces over time. For example, he suggested the pathway system and playgrounds can be done by the public works department out of the operating budget.

Even this plan is not set in concrete, for as Weidenfeld explained, the plan assumes that some of the money will come from Open Space funds.

Several residents of Greenbelt East urged council to give priority to playgrounds, picnic areas and trails. Giese agreed the playground in the northeast corner of the park could be done early because that area does not need site preparation. And Weidenfeld said the need for the playgrounds can be accommodated since the price tag is low.

Northway Fields

Since the lack of lighted ball fields was a major concern, other ball-playing facilities were discussed. Giese said a major ballfield complex has long been planned at the Northway fields complex. Currently the city operates two baseball fields at the end of Northway west of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and surrounded by Parcel 1 and by the 72 acres now owned by the county but to be transferred to the city.

Although there are currently no funds or plans for the Northway complex, Giese said he feels that the lighted ball fields should be at Northway Fields rather than Schrom Hills Park. For one thing there are no neighbors to be bothered by the lights, he said. He admitted that to build more fields at Northway the city must acquire the 72 acres. Weidenfeld said County Executive

by Greg Ross

On Thursday, March 2, High's Dairy Store moved from 131 to 109 Centerway. The new location is across from Roosevelt Center, on the site of the old Ben Franklin store.

James Mead, who has been managing the store since June 1984, said that the new store has the same square footage as the old location, but that it is better arranged, which allows for a number of new features that weren't available in the old store.

Among other things, the new operation offers movie rentals, a service deli, fresh-baked cookies, pretzels, pizza, and soup—even a talking cigarette machine. "There's not a lot we don't sell," Mead said, noting that fresh produce is the only staple missing from the store. "We have basically all the conveniences anyone wants."

The new location also benefits from the availability of a loading dock, which Mead said cuts down on traffic and parking problems early in the morning.

The new location was officially open for business at 11:30 a.m. March 2, while the old one closed its doors for good at noon. This left one half-hour during which Greenbelt had two operating dairy stores. "That confused a few people," said Mead.

Assistant Manager Annie Sowers said customers have reacted favorably to the additions, saying "They like the variety."

"There's not a lot of people hanging around," said customer Berni Kelly of Ridge Road, who said that had been a problem at the old location. She added that the new store's appearance was "nice and clean and light."

Sharon Epstein, also of Ridge Road, thought that the store appeared larger than its predecessor, and also "more spacious" and "lighter."

More than 250 stores comprise the High's chain. The Greenbelt store, which Sowers said has been in operation for more than 30 years, is run by a staff of seven, including Mead and Sowers.

The store expanded to 24-hour operation in September 1988 in order to serve early-morning customers, who previously had to search Kenilworth Avenue and Greenbelt Road for an open convenience store. Mead mentioned that at first he was "skeptical" of the potential for success of a 24-hour operation, but noted that the early-morning staff has supported itself in increased business. He added that crime has not been a problem due to the support of the Greenbelt police.

Mead said that he particularly appreciates the support of the local community's business, noting that Greenbelt patrons are responsible for "the success of all business" in Roosevelt Center. "The community supports all the stores in here," he said. "That's what makes it successful."

Greenbelt Museum Holds Fundraiser Auction Apr. 1

A 1947 Dodge sedan will be among the many items offered at the auction sponsored by the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum on Saturday, April 1, 2-5 p.m., at the Springhill Lake Fountain Lodge, 6220 Springhill Drive.

The historic vehicle is in operating condition with its original engine. It has had only three owners in the past 41 years and has been stored in a garage for nearly 20 years.

The auction will feature a variety of goods and services, from the preparation of a simple will to a calligraphy job. There will be opportunities to bid on furniture, a silver tea set, lunch and tour of Annapolis with State Senator Leo Green, a limousine ride, catered dinners, art work and desserts. Three bedframes, part of the original Greenbelt furniture designed by the Works Progress Administration, will also be offered for auction. Admission is free. There will be door prizes and refreshments.

All proceeds from the auction will benefit the endowment fund of the Greenbelt Museum, a 1930's house located at 10-B Crescent Road. The museum is filled with furniture and artifacts of the 1930s and 1940s, and represents the time when Greenbelt was owned and operated by the federal government.

Supports Petition

The recent results of the School Board's survey on Center School versus the North End site should not be the deciding factor (for city council) in making a decision for the following reasons: (1) The outcome of the survey and the way in which it was conducted did not afford all residents the opportunity to vote. The voting was limited to one vote per household, and there are many households with at least two or more voters. (2) The survey did not reach every household and some received more than one. (3) Most of the survey as presented tended to be biased. The only question to be answered should have been the choice to renovate Center School or build a new school at the North End. (4) For city council to make a decision on such a survey would be insensitive, knowledgeable and a mistake.

I am in complete accord with the petition now being circulated asking council to have a referendum on the school issue. Before council undertakes the renovation of Center School it should compare its cost to that of the North End Center.

Set the Record Straight

Open Letter to the Greenbelt Community:

I am very distressed about two statements attributed to me in an article that appeared in the Prince George's Journal on March 21. I am distressed because neither of the statements is true and because I did not make them.

The Journal article is on the results of a School Board survey of Greenbelt residents to determine whether they favor renovating Center School or building a new school at the city-owned North End School site. From reading the article it appears that I was interviewed by the reporter for my reaction to the survey results released in the middle of March. I have not spoken to this reporter in over a month.

Whether the Greenbelt Center School should be renovated or replaced by a new school at another site is a sensitive issue in Greenbelt and inaccurate reports in a newspaper story only serve to intensify the existing controversy.

To set the record straight, neither the Greenbelt City Council as a body nor I as an individ-

City Sells Bands to Protect Trees from Gypsy Moths

by Renee M. Winsky

The City of Greenbelt is making sticky barrier bands available to residents to aid in this year's battle against gypsy moths for a nominal price. "Repel-M" brand sticky barrier bands are made of a foil tape with adhesive on both sides. The adhesive will not harm the tree bark or the person handling it. The tape is 4" wide and 50' long. One roll will encircle five to seven 24"-round trees. Bands may be purchased in the Finance Office, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Sticky barrier bands prevent gypsy moth caterpillars from crawling up tree trunks and into tree canopies where they feed on the foliage. The bands can protect trees from defoliation by preventing primary and secondary invasions by the caterpillars. The bands must be maintained all season.

Applying Sticky Barrier Bands

Barrier bands should be in place just before gypsy moth egg masses hatch. Since the egg masses will hatch from early- to mid-April, depending on the temperature, sticky barrier bands should be placed on trees during the first week in April to block the ascent of newly hatched caterpillars. Select an acceptable height on the tree that has few bumps and crevices on the bark. Chest level is the ideal height to place the barrier band for proper maintenance. At this height the sticky barrier band will be out of reach of small children and pets. Before application, brush off loose bark, moss and dirt so that the barrier band will adhere to the bark surface. Do not apply the barrier bands on a wet surface.

For initial application, press one edge of the barrier band firmly against the bark. Proceed to wrap the barrier band horizontally around the tree, making sure the band is pressed securely into all the cracks and crevices of the bark. Any gaps or spaces left under the band will allow gypsy moth caterpillars to slip under the barrier band and gain access to the foliage. Overlap the ends of the band to ensure a complete barrier around the tree trunk. The band can be torn or cut with scissors after being applied to and wrapped around the tree.

Maintaining Sticky Barrier Bands

Periodically the sticky barrier bands should be inspected to ensure their effectiveness against the caterpillars. Check for dirt, trapped insects and other types of debris. Occasionally, in high gypsy moth population densities, very small caterpillars may cover the sticky barrier band. If this happens, a new sticky barrier band should be applied. This assures a continuous barrier against the caterpillars.

Condolences to Daniel E. Haviland on the death of his father, Edmund B. Haviland, Jr. on March 15.

Condolences also to Naomi Carman and Jeanette Letiecq on the death of their brother, R. Bruce Hull of College Park.

A heartfelt welcome home to school board member Suzanne Plogman. She found herself in the hospital unexpectedly awhile back for an extended stay. Family and friends are glad she's feeling better.

Marie Brown of Green Ridge House had a wonderful time recently attending her granddaughter Colleen's wedding in Annapolis. Colleen married Robert Joseph in an afternoon ceremony at St. Mary's Church. Family from both sides gathered, including parents Don and Janet Brown, sister Doreen, nieces, nephews, aunts and uncles. The happy couple is honeymooning in Austria. Our best to the newlyweds.

ual have stated; "that the city is willing to swap the North End site-which it owns-for the Center School, which the county owns" or, that "the option to use that building has been all but scrapped because of an expensive asbestos removal problem." The latter comment refers to the use of the vacant North End School as a community center.

I have requested a correction from the Prince George's Journal to set the record straight.

that has become separated from the bark. Small animals (especially squirrels) and birds will pull up the bands while feeding on trapped insects.

Do not be discouraged if few or no caterpillars appear directly on the sticky barrier. The tacky material prevents caterpillars from crossing the barrier; it is not necessarily a trapping device. The caterpillars will avoid the sticky material and will not attempt to cross it. Instead, they will move horizontally around the tree, just below the barrier band. At this point, the caterpillars should be removed from the tree trunk and destroyed. In early Spring, many of the newly hatched caterpillars will die of starvation and accumulate below the sticky barrier bands.

The sticky bands should be removed in August after the adult female gypsy moths have laid their egg masses. Carefully roll off the barrier band in the same manner as rolling up a carpet. Place the old barrier band in a plastic or paper bag and dispose of it in the trash.

For further information on the city's Gypsy Moth Control Program, call Renee Winsky at 474-8000.

He was taken to Boy's Village pending a hearing. Officers had responded to a report of two juveniles tampering with vehicles at the Greenbelt Marriott. The youths fled on foot. K-9 Bear found one youth hiding in the bushes, but the other got away. Investigation revealed the two vehicles had been stolen that morning, one from the Marriott parking lot and the other from Lanham.

A 1988 Chevy Camaro Iroc and a 1985 Toyota Carolla, both stolen Mar. 14, were recovered later by Washington Metropolitan police. There were no arrests.

Pfc. Maria Arthur recovered a 1988 Chevy Spectrum on Mar. 15 in Greenbelt. The car had been stolen in Washington the day before.

Five other cars were stolen in Greenbelt last week: a light blue 1985 Ford Escort, NC tag ARW 9951, on Mar. 12, from 6100 block of Breezewood Dr.; a 1977 Ford 150 pickup with blue and white cap on rear, MD tag 083158M, on Mar. 13, from 6000 block of Greenbelt Rd.; a red 1987 Chevy Nova, IN tag 49D 8622, on Mar. 14, from 6100 block of Springhill Tr.; a white 1984 4-door Toyota Carolla, MD tag PSU 0624, on Mar. 15, from 8000 block of Mandan Rd.; and a 1984 Toyota Carolla, MD tag VTG 232, on Mar. 15, from the 7700 block of Hanover Pkwy.

Two adults were arrested for shoplifting this past week. In a third incident, two women were seen concealing shoes in a purse. They attempted to leave without paying. The shoes were recovered, but the women got away. They are described as: (1) black, age 28, 5 ft. 5 in., thin build, wearing a leather trench coat and sun glasses, and (2) black, age 33, 5 ft. 7 in., medium build, wearing blue jeans, a denim jacket, beige blouse and blue raincoat. They left in a recent model two-door Oldsmobile, DC tag 338-437.

Two men left Bennigan's without paying their bill on Mar. 11. They are described as: (1) black, age 23, 6 ft. 2 in., 180 lbs., wearing blue sweat pants and light blue sweat shirt; and (2) black, age 23, 6 ft. 1 in., wearing a black sweat suit and a Georgetown baseball cap. They left the area in a Toyota 4-runner truck, MD tag 241-543.

A 17-year-old nonresident girl was arrested by Pfc. Michael Carr on Mar. 10 for taking cash from someone else's wallet at Godfather's Pizza in Greenway.

DENTAL HEALTH POSTERS AWARDED PRIZES

The grand prize winners in the First Annual McCarl Family Dental Office Poster Contest were Corita Jones, Grade 6, and Brad Barber, Grade 3, both of the Center School. County Councilman Richard J. Castaldi presented the winners with a fifty dollar savings bond each in an awards ceremony at the McCarl office. The other children present received prizes for partici-

Citizens With Disabilities Form New Social Club

by Deborah A. Sieff

A new activities club for disabled Greenbelt area citizens was scheduled to hold its first meeting, March 17, according to a Greenbelt Recreation Department spokesperson, who was interviewed before the event.

"FLASH, an acronym for the Friendship Leisure Activities and Social Horizons club, is designed as a social club for adults with physical, mental or emotional difficulties," said therapeutic recreation specialist Karen Haseley. The first event is planned as a game night with board games, card games, and charades like television's 'Win, Lose or Draw.'

Haseley said one of the main reasons for starting the club was to alleviate problems with isolation. "Handicapped people often feel very isolated," she said, "because it's difficult for them to get out and meet other people." She said the club will provide an opportunity to meet other people, with or without disabilities. "We want to increase their independence and also provide information about other available programs."

Future plans for the club depend on how large it gets, the types of disabilities participants may have and what participants want to do, Haseley said. "We would like to sponsor overnight trips, bowling nights, going out to dinner, or anything members want to do. After all, it's their club. We're just here to help them."

The program is estimated at $25 per year for Greenbelt residents, and $31.25 per year, or 25% more, for non-Greenbelt residents, according to Haseley. While this money will cover some transportation, refreshment and mailings costs, the bulk of the program will be funded by the Recreation Department, she said. The largest expenses will include space rentals for club meetings and salary costs for club director Wayne Reed and assistant club director Rosemarie Tucci.

However, these expenses will not be definite until Haseley receives input from participants at the first meeting, she said.

Haseley said that some people still don't know how to treat the handicapped. "People tend to look at the disabled through

Lights

Parris Glendening has assured the city he is moving ahead with getting the land for the city.

And Councilmember Ed Putens said that although the 72-acre acquisition is now a possibility, there is still a question of where to get the money. He mentioned that a concept plan for the Northway fields complex will be completed this summer by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Lola Skolnik of the Park and Recreation Advisory Board asked when there would be lighting at Northway fields. Giese said there is some money allocated in the 1991 budget to plan the ball field complex and that the present fields could be lighted in two years.

Giese said the needed improvements to Braden Field would not take place until the city has other fields in use.

Compromise?

Toward the end of the meeting people on both sides of the lighting issue seemed to be groping toward a compromise acceptable to all.

Julie Greer said that on behalf of the Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club, she would be happy to have lighting only on the side facing away from Hanover Parkway.

Then Weidenfeld suggested a meeting of representatives of both sides. He said the city would be glad to work with them, for example by arranging visits to see practice lights at fields outside Greenbelt. Foy agreed that a meeting would be a good idea.

Later Foy and Roy Dahl of Greenwood Village suggested speeding up the timetable for lighted ballfields at Northway. And Putens suggested that the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee consider this idea.

Keir said he would support whatever it took to get fields with lights.

Giese said council decides how to spend the money so money could be funneled to Northway or conversely to Schrom Hills.

Councilman Thomas White cautioned that Northway can be raised in the priority list, but not at the expense of Schrom Hills Park.

Weidenfeld said that if an agreement can be reached by both parties council would like to go that way, but if not, council will decide the lighting issue.

Pond?

Fielder said that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has still made no decision whether there will be a pond built in the northern section of the park or whether the area will remain wetlands.

Mary Chapman of Ridge Road expressed concern about disturbing the wetlands, but Renee Gross said her house overlooks the area and she was assured when she bought her house that a pond would be built.

Francis Inducted Into Rotary Club

Willie Francis, Jr., Affirmative Action Manager for Guy F. Atkinson Construction Company, was inducted into membership at the Greenbelt Rotary Club's weekly breakfast meeting recently.

Francis joined the staff of Guy Atkinson Company in 1966 and has worked on various projects in the United States, Saudi Arabia and Canada. At present he is working in Washington on the Metro Greenline E8a Contract.

How Can Dentists Help In Child Identification?

The growing concern of parents and public officials with the problem of lost and missing children has prompted the dental profession to seek better identification techniques. In all programs a complete dental history, which is unique for each individual and almost impossible to alter, is compiled. Combined with other data including birthdate, health history and fingerprints, a full description of a missing child is more readily available. In addition it is hoped that similar programs can be established and utilized to aid in special situations such as mental retardation, speech defects and senility.

Child Keyppers of Florida, founded in 1983, was the first organization to utilize dental charting as a means of identifying missing and kidnapped children. Special dental charts are used to gather information to be compared to data in the FBI's National Information Center. This program is currently being expanded nationwide.

Other proposed methods would employ the use of disc bonded to the inner surface of a tooth. Each disc would contain vital information about the individual or a code number which could be fed into a computer to achieve positive identification. Considering that one child is kidnapped every 3 minutes, the importance of reliable means of identification can not be understated.

GHI Audit Committee

Due to the resignation of Julian Weiss, a vacancy exists on the three-person Audit Committee. The Audit Committee reviews and evaluates finances and other operations of the Corporation.

Under the GHI Bylaws, vacancies on the committee are filled by the remaining members of the committee. To help them fulfill this duty, the Audit Committee would like suggestions of GHI members who could serve on the committee. All suggestions should be sent to the Audit Committee in care of the Member Services Office by Monday, April 10.

Smell Gas?

If you smell natural gas, you should know what steps to take.

First, call us at 750-2500 anytime, day or night. If this is long-distance for you, call 1-800-752-7520. Do not attempt to locate the source of the odor yourself.

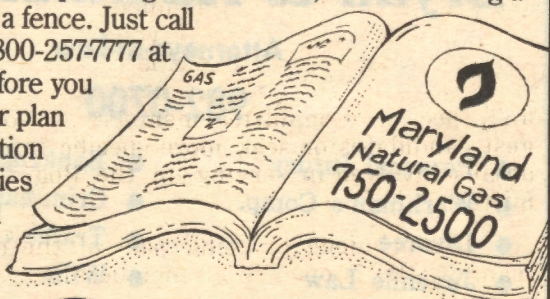

If the odor is very strong, leave the building immediately and call us from a neighbor's home.

Never light matches, turn electrical switches on or off, or use the telephone if the odor is strong.

Maryland Natural Gas takes extra precautions so you can detect the presence of natural gas. Since it has no odor, we add one, so you can detect even the smallest amount of gas escaping.

To further ensure your safety, at least once every three years, we check every piece of pipe in our underground distribution system.

We also co-sponsor Miss Utility, a special service for homeowners who are planning construction, such as adding a deck or installing a fence. Just call Miss Utility at 1-800-257-7777 at least 48 hours before you or your contractor plan to begin construction and the area utilities will come out and mark their lines at no charge to you.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again,

Not everyone is aware that automatic transmissions and transaxles have filters that guard against harsh contaminants. To make sure that your transmission fluid has survived the winter, check its level. Inspect the color of the fluid. It should be reddish or pinkish, not dark like motor oil. It should not smell burnt or overheated.

Remember that the transmission or transaxle is a separate component of the engine and has to be considered in preventive maintenance servicing for long and faithful service.

Till next time
